Fake Hospital Ship Taken

By DEAN SCHEDLER

MANILA, Aug. 4 (AP)—A Japanese hospital ship carrying contraband arms and apparently fake patients has been seized in the Banda Sea north of Dutch-Portuguese Timor and is being brought into an Allied port today for investigation, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced.

A boarding party from the blockading Allied Seventh Fleet found machine guns, .75-mm shells and other ammunition packed in boxes marked "medical supplies," MacArthur said.

The accosted vessel was clearly marked with safe-conduct red crosses on its sides and upright on the superstructure.

There were approximately 1500 men aboard listed as patients. When the bandages were removed from some of them no wounds were found, the announcement said.

The ship's route was not disclosed. The Banda sea is roughly 400 miles north of Australia. The area is filled with small and large islands, mostly Dutch, which have been occupied by the Japanese since the fall of the Netherlands East Indies. The hospital ship could have been transferring men and arms among the blockaded island outposts.

Boarding of the vessel by the party from the Allied Seventh Fleet was in strict conformity with international law and the Geneva conventions to ascertain if improper use was being made of a hospital ship.

Another Japanese hospital ship, the Takasago Maru, was intercepted and inspected early in July while carrying 974 of Nippon's "living dead" from Wake island. An American boarding party of 32 looked over the ship for infractions of international law.

The Takasago Maru was stopped twice—on July 3 and 5—and was permitted to proceed.

Truman Scores Hit With Allied Chiefs

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

WITH PRESIDENT TRUMAN ABOARD USS AUGUSTA, Aug. 4 (AP)—President Truman's oft-expressed view a solution can be found for every legitimate controversy emerged today as one of his major contributions to the Berlin conference.

Presiding over the sessions with geniality and good humor, he early convinced the British and Russian leaders no avenue of compromise should be abandoned.

The protocol which emerged in the small hours of Tuesday was based in large measure upon agenda the President brought with him in writing to the first meeting.

Prepared in frequent consultations with Sec. Byrnes, the proposals gave the three delegations a basis for starting immediate consultations.

The decision to establish a council of foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, Great Britain, China and France was based on the agenda. Mr. Truman wanted to provide a means for continuous preparatory work for the peace settlements.

He did much to keep his conferees in good humor throughout the nine meetings in which former Prime Minister Churchill participated and the remaining four involving his successor, Clement Attlee. He left Potsdoma with the apparent good will of the Russian and British leadership.

Attlee suggested a technical change in language in one part of the protocol based on the American agenda. Stalin apparently thought the American language was clearer than the British. Mr. Truman told Stalin the change was agreeable to him.

"If the President of the United States understands it, the Russians can, too," Stalin replied with a grin.

Extend Bases For Invasion

By Associated Press

Gen. MacArthur, forming "a mighty invasion force for the final conquest of Japan," disclosed today he has added another air force to the powerful sky armada pounding Japan so thoroughly that "not a single area of safety" remains in all the sacred islands.

The on-to-Tokyo leader announced he has taken over command of Okinawa and other Ryukyu island bases, added them to the Philippines as "a great semi-circular base" for invasion.

(The War Department in Washington said there has been no change in the Pacific setup and interpreted the announcement at Manila today as MacArthur actually putting into effect orders issued to him April 6.

(The joint chiefs of staff on that date announced Gen. MacArthur had been made commander-in-chief of all ground forces in the Pacific for the final drive on Japan. Shortly thereafter MacArthur exercised this jurisdiction when he named Gen. Stilwell, commander on Okinawa after the death of Gen. Simon B. Buckner. Okinawa is one of the Ryuhyu islands.)

The 13th Jungle Air Force is being moved up from the Philippines to join four other Okinawa-based air forces. The 13th is part of Gen. Kenney's Far Eastern air forces which so far this year have destroyed or damaged 2,846,932 tons of shipping and 1375 planes.

The Fifth and Seventh Air Forces, also under Kenney, have already moved into Okinawa, and Lt. Gen. Doolittle's Eighth (Superfort) group is scheduled to start operations from the same island this month. These forces are in addition to the 20th (Superfort) Air Force in the Marinas, and two fleet and two marine air wings on Okinawa.

"In the face of the current indiscriminate bombings by American planes," the enemy's government controlled Domei news agency complained, "there certainly is not a single area of safety throughout Japan."

Jap suicide planes sank, on Sunday, one U. S. ship and damaged another in one of their now rare counterattacks at Okinawa.

In the only noteworthy ground action Chinese troops captured Sinning, stronghold guarding the enemy's western flank in southern China, and smashed toward the rail town of Tungan. Tungan is 90 miles northeast of recently recaptured Kweilin.

The suggestion brought this enigmatic reply from Soviet Generalissimo Stalin: "God willing."

There was no further explanation of the Soviet leader's cryptic comment, but it is believed to indicate qualified approval provided future circumstances warrant such a trip.

Stilwell's Hat Saved From Sea

OKINAWA, Aug. 4 (AP)—Gen. Stilwell's battered campaign hat—the one he has worn for more than 20 years—blew out of the window of a Cub observation plane today into the ocean off Okinawa, but he got it back.

When the Cub returned to the air strip Stilwell offered $25 reward to anyone recovering the hat, and hundreds of soldiers took up the hunt by air and sea.

The hat was recovered 200 yards off shore by Cpl. Edward P. Donahue of Cleveland, who waded up past his armpits to get it. He got his reward.

Laval Says Fleet Sinking Clears Vichy

PARIS, Aug. 4 (AP)—Pierre Laval, testifying concerning the Vichy government's attitude toward the Allied landing in North Africa in 1942, contended that the Vichy order to French commanders to resist was a general order designed to prevent a German attack there.

Brought from a dungeon of the Palace of Justice in Paris to resume his testimony in the treason trial of 89-year-old Marshal Petain, Laval said the Germans ordered both him and the marshal to speak out against the North Africa landings, forcing them to obey.

Reminded by the court that Petain had "sent certain messages which he ought not to have sent," Laval said:

"Petain was not free. He was ordered by the Germans to send those messages. I also was instructed to speak publicly on the subject."

"It would have been impossible for France to survive without collaboration," Laval added. "We depended on the Germans for everything. Our economic life was at a standstill. The Germans had two weapons against us. Firstly, they could always threaten to recall the 600,000 prisoners they had returned to us. Secondly, they could withhold food and industrial materials from the north."

Recalling events that preceded scuttling of the major part of the French fleet at Toulon at the time of the Allies' African landings, Laval testified that the Germans tried to seize the French warships by surprise.

"If we were on such good terms with the German government, don't you think they might have tried to persuade us to surrender the fleet instead of having tried to take it by surprise?" Laval said.

"Their operation began at 4 a. m. at Toulon, and we were not informed until a half-hour later."

Laval said that as soon as he had been informed by the Germans in a phone call of their plans to enter Toulon, he protested, and then called a Vichy government meeting.

"The first thing we did was to telephone Toulon," he asserted. "We were informed that the ships had been blown up, one after another in Toulon harbor."

Laval said the Germans decreed the mobilization of all men and women in occupied countries who had not already been employed by the Germans themselves.

Laval said he threatened to resign unless the Germans modified the decree, and remarked that France was the only occupied country in which the Germans did not mobilize the women as workers.

8 Million Yank Parachute Newspapers to Hit Japan

MANILA, Aug. 4 (AP) — The newspaper American pilots drop into Japan—Rakkasan Parachute News—will increase its circulation from 1,000,000 weekly to 8,000,000 as the tempo of bombs and destruction increases.

The circulation will reach 4,000,000 by August 15 and the 8,000,000 goal a month later, said Lt. Col. J. Woodall Greene, St. Petersburg, Fla., executive officer.

The paper is delivered to B-29 bases in the Marianas and to the Far Eastern Air Forces (FEAF) on Okinawa to be dropped over the enemy homeland every Monday morning.

Copies are packed in bombs similar to incendiaries. A 100-pounder carries about 50,000 and a 500-pounder about 200,000.

The newspaper is a miniature of a typical Japanese daily, containing editorials, at least three pictures, a cartoon and the equivalent of about 1800 English words of news.

Prisoners of war and former employes of Jap newspapers and the Domei news agency assist in publication, which is supervised by Maj. Michael Mitchell of Philadelphia, who worked on Jap papers for 14 years prior to 1941.

Will Quiz Girl Pal Of Dracut Victim

Clothes and personal belongings taken from the Lowell boarding house of Mrs. Mary George Saunders, 20, whose skeleton was found Wednesday in Dracut woods, were being examined today as investigators planned to question a Framingham girl, a close friend of the victim. State police hoped the girl, who had been a frequent companion of the dead woman before she moved from Lowell to Framingham, might furnish a clue which would solve her mysterious disappearance and death.

They turned to this possibility after deciding that the dead woman's husband, Pvt. Thomas V. Adler, now at an Army disciplinary barracks in Greenhaven, N. Y., would not be of any assistance to them in retracing her activities, since he was in military custody when she disapeared.

Adler, who used the name Ralph T. Saunders when he married the victim in Manchester, N. H., in Dec., 1943, has been at the huge Army prison camp since July 10 and was in custody at Ft. Slocum, N. Y., for some time prior to that after being picked up in Alexandria, Va., while AWOL.

Investigators also questioned two other men at Lowell police headquarters during the day after they had obtained information the pair were friendly with Mrs. Saunders in recent weeks.

The seizure of the victim's clothing and personal belongings from her room in a Middlesex st., Lowell, boarding house was made during a search of the quarters by State police during the early morning.

Lt. Crescio ordered the room searched after a report from doctors that a fracture of the left jaw had been found. It was not determined whether the break occurred before or after death.

He also ordered a roundup of all men known to have been friendly with the victim in the belief she may have been beaten.

Ten men, already questioned, were released during the early morning hours although all were ordered to be available for further inquiry.

Among them was a 28-year-old Lowell man, owner of a summer camp near the Lowell-Dracut line, who said he left Mrs. Saunders at her boarding house at 2 a. m. July 8, the last reported time she was seen alive.

Her family in Manchester, N. H., had not seen her since June 29. On that day her sister, Miss Stella George, visited her in Lowell.

Constantine Raptis, 23, Franklin st., Lowell, reported he had seen her walking along the street with three men. William Bikos, 16, Lagrange st., Lowell, who was with Raptist, corroborated his story.

Phyllis Greenhalge, 18, Middlesax st., a friend of Mrs. Saunders, saw her on the same day in the company of a man about 45 in a variety store where the victim formerly had done part-time work.

From Mrs. Irene Maraganis, a cousin, police learned that Mrs. Saunders was receiving an allotment check from her husband.

Irene, who described the victim, Mary, as a good natured, affable girl, said her cousin had been going on dates with sailors and other men because her marriage hadn't turned out happily.

It was Irene who aided police in tracing Mary Saunders' movements on the night Mary was last reported seen alive—the night of July 7 and early hours of July 8.

At 5:30 p. m., on Saturday, July 7, Irene said she and Mary met in the Tip Top Lunch in Middlesex st., Lowell, a few minutes before Mary was scheduled to leave to keep a date with a sailor in front of the Hotel Merrimack. Irene said Mary told her the sailor was not a Lowell man, that he was on a 30-day furlough and was not in uniform.

"She told me he had a car and asked me to come along and meet him," Irene said, "but I didn't want to go."

Whether or not Mary met the sailor, the police have not determined. However, one of Mary's many men friends who were questioned last night and early today at Lowell police headquarters, admitted, detectives said, that he kept a date with her late that night and then saw her to the door of her boarding house in Middlesex st., Lowell, at 2 a. m. on July 8.

This is the last hour that Mary was reported seen alive. Later, during daylight hours the same morning, Irene told authorities she went to her cousin's boarding house to call and was informed by the landlady that Mary wasn't home and hadn't come home the night before.

Irene said she did not pay any particular attention to her cousin's absence, because Mary frequently left Lowell to go to New York on vacations. When Mary left her the evening before to meet the sailor, Irene said Mrs. Saunders was wearing a gray dress with wine-colored trimming, the pair of red wedgie-type sandals which were found on the body, and the heart-shaped locket containing her baby's picture, which were discovered in the woods nearby.

Why and how the body was placed in the woods unclothed except for the shoes is one of the most baffling angles of the case to police.

With the medical disclosure that the left jaw of the skeleton was fractured, police inclined to the theory the clothes may have borne tell-tale signs — either bloodstains or tears. While awaiting additional reports from Dr. Alan R. Moritz, State pathologist, to determine the exact cause of death and to learn if the jaw was fractured before or after death, Lt. Crescio said investigators were working on the possibility that the victim was beaten.

Investigators said they were convinced that the missing clothing would prove valuable as a clue in uncovering the person or persons responsible for Mary's death, as the shoes, the locket and the baby's photograph were in identifying the victim.

It was Stella, incidentally, who first recognized these items as belonging to her sister. She saw photographs of them in the Boston American and went immediately to Manchester police, starting the probe which resulted in police identification of Mary as the Dracut woods victim.

4 Cities Hit By Taunton Bus Strike

TAUNTON, Aug. 4—Striking bus drivers of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Co. today deprived this city of its main transportation system, patronized by 12,000 persons daily, while Camp Myles Standish was forced to transport military personnel and civilian workers back and forth on hourly schedules in Army buses.

If the strike continues over the week-end, parents and friends of soldiers back from Europe may find it impossible to visit them tomorrow unless they have automobiles and the necessary gas coupons, Army officers said. Ordinarily about 1000 persons visit the camp each Sunday, they added.

Sunday continuance of the strike would cause from 15,000 to 18,000 persons to be affected throughout the week-end, it was estimated.

The strikers are 60 drivers of the company's Taunton division. Their walkout tied up bus service between Taunton and Boston, Brockton, Fall River and Providence. They are members of the Amalgamated Ass'n of Street Railroad and Motor Coach Employes of America, AFL, Local 243.

A meeting of union officials and members was scheduled for tonight at 8.

Frank Kelley, president of the local, said the strike vote was in protest of a decision by Raymond O'Connell, State Dept. of Labor arbiter.

The strike is a repeat performance of a walkout by the drivers of the division May 17 to enforce demands that men of the Taunton division be given a share of the work operating the express line to the Park sq., terminal in Boston and at Fall River.

Fathers Love Child On Prison Holiday

PROVIDENCE, Aug. 4 (AP)—With connivance of a captain of the guards at Rhode Island State Prison and a Cranston police officer, a convict serving 30 years for murder conducted an illicit love affair outside the prison last fall with a woman who recently gave birth to a child, state officials revealed today.

State Director of Social Welfare Clemens J. France announced the discharge of George H. Kimmel, captain of the guards and a former Providence patrolman. He declined to make public the name of a former part-time guard at the prison named in the report to Gov. J. Howard McGrath as the man believed to have taken the convict to Providence and to have allowed him to visit the woman's home on three occasions.

The convict, admitting being the father of the child born June 27, is Milton Dexter, 36, of Pawtucket, who on Dec. 26, 1932, murdered his employer with a hammer and hid the body for more than three months before confessing the slaying.

He was sentenced to 30 years on Oct. 31, 1933, after conviction of second-degree murder.

2 Babies Sped To Hub Doctors By Plane, Auto

Two infant boys, a five-day-old from Manchester, Ct., and one nine days old, from Kittery, Me., were rushed by plane and automobile, respectively, to the Children's Hospital for delicate emergency operations.

Joseph Audette of Manchester arrived in a United Airlines plane yesterday afternoon at the height of the storm, holding his baby, Thomas Michael, in his arms. The child could hardly breathe because of a blocked windpipe.

Surgeons operated. Today Thomas Michael was believed recovering. When carried aboard the plane a Hartford physician thought the baby had little chance of reaching Boston alive.

Today a Portsmouth, N. H., physician speeded to Boston by auto, bringing 9-days-old Raymond Marois of Kittery, Me., to the skill of surgeons at the world-famed hospital. With them was the baby's father, Roland, also holding his child.

They were met by a police car from the Charlestown station at the Alford st. bridge. Patrolmen Frank C. Martis and Harry Norman escorted the doctor's car to the hospital.

This afternoon Raymond's condition, suspected of being a dangerous throat ailment, was under diagnosis.

Girl Waits Limbless Flying Vet

SPRINGFIELD, Aug. 4—"I'm waiting for him. Jimmy's my boy!"

Thus Miss Betty Koslovski, 20, of North Wilbraham, a Springfield war worker, revealed one of the most thrilling stories of courage and love to come out of the war.

Betty's faith and loyalty inspired a bomber crewman who survived a crash against a Vermont mountainside that killed nine of his mates to fight for life despite the loss of both arms and legs.

The courage of the crewman, PFC James Wilson, 20, of Starke, Fla., and Betty's love and devotion, won White House recognition. And today, after a battle against overwhelming odds, PFC Wilson is recovering at England General Hospital, Atlantic City, N. J., where he prizes among his souvenirs a cheering letter and a long cigaret holder from the late President Roosevelt.

Betty wrote to him constantly and has visited him twice since he was transferred to New Jersey. She planned to spend her annual week's vacation in September visiting Jimmy again.

Jimmy's bomber was on a routine flight over Vermont last October when it crashed. Jimmy lay for 44 hours in freezing weather before he was rescued.

At Westover Field Hospital he fought for his life, with Betty by his side.

When amputations were found necessary, she continued to cheer him to face the ordeal. His hands and wrists were removed first.

Betty encouraged him to practice with artificial hands.

Coronation Off, Tinkers in Wake

GALWAY, Eire, Aug. 4 (AP)—The Irish tinkers had a wake, not a coronation, last night when 18-year-old Martin Collins, a member of one of the itinerant tribes, drowned while bathing in the sea.

His death caused the postponement of the scheduled finish fight between Martin Ward, who claims direct descent from Bard Macanbhard, and Patrick Dodd of Tuam for the title of "King of the Irish Tinkers" and the right to choose any of the tribes' loveliest colleens for a bride.

The wandering menders of pots and pans who had gathered for the great drinking bout, the fight and the ensuing coronation, scattered today as Collins' kin made arrangements for his funeral.

It was understood the tinkers would gather again at Ballinasloe, in Galway County, the first week in October for the showdown between Ward and Dodd.

Suspend 4 More Meat Dealers

OPA officials here announced today their probe of the 4,000,000 red point counterfeit fraud of last February had resulted in the suspension of four more market operators, bringing the total to eight, while eight alleged pedlars and distributors of the fake coupons are awaiting trial.

More than 100 Massachusetts market operators are involved in the investigation, it was stated.

Barney Turin of Egmont st., Brookline, president and treasurer of the Roxbury Supermarket, Inc., Washington st., was suspended for the duration from dealing in rationed meats, fats, fish and cheese, as were his employes. OPA charges he deposited 88,300 counterfeit red points in his ration banking account.

The five partners of Jacob Shafran & Sons, Harvard st., Brookline, Henry, Victor, Samuel, Milton and George, were suspended for one month and placed on probation for five months. OPA charges they bought 50,000 counterfeit red points and deposited them in their ration banking account.

Angelo Piumetto, proprietor of Piumetto's Market, Elm st., Lawrence, was suspended for one month and placed on probation for five months. OPA states he deposited 13,000 of the counterfeit points.

The Bay State Market Co., Blackstone st., Boston, Samuel H. Goldsmith, Rossiter st., Dorchester, president, was suspended for two weeks, beginning Aug. 15, and placed on probation for 90 days. They allegedly deposited 15,280 of the bogus points.

Court OK's Veil

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 4 (AP)—A protest by Miss Shu Deli of New York city that she should be allowed to wear a full-face veil if other women can wear this season's scanty bathing suits yesterday led Recorder Al Shahadi to dismiss a disorderly conduct charge made against her by a patrolman who said her veil attracted a crowd and when a soldier tried to remove it, a disturbance was created.

Explaining she wore the veil for religious reasons, Miss Deli told the court, "I've noticed women walking around here practically nude yet they're not approached by police."

Robert Kelso  Gloria Neas

Vet, 14, Brings Gift to His Girl, Ponders School

HOUSTON, Tex., Aug. 4 (AP)—Pvt. Robert (Junior) Kelso, 14-year-old war veteran with the Purple Heart and two battle stars for combat in Germany, can't decide whether he wants to go on to the Pacific or return to school.

Young Kelso walked into his father's office last night, bashful and full of excuses for not being on the train from San Antonio the night before. While photographers and reporters had waited at the station for his homecoming, Bob had fallen asleep in the San Antonio station.

Bob went straight to see Gloria Neas, 15, the girl friend to whom he had brought a bottle of perfume from Paris, but was so bashful, he could gulp only a "Hello."

"He always was bashful," Gloria explained, "but I thought the Army might have changed him. I guess it hasn't."

Bob shaved for the first time yesterday because it was his homecoming. He joined the Army when he was only 13, giving his age as 18.

He was wounded in Germany by a Nazi storm trooper who stabbed him in the right leg. He told his father, Fred Kelso, that he shot the Nazi.

Truman Signs 3 Economic Bills

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—Presidential signature of three major measures providing for American participation in international economic and monetary operations was announced today.

The measures are the Bretton Woods Bill providing for a huge monetary fund to stabilize post-war exchange rates; the measure increasing the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank from $700,000,000 to $3,500,000,000 to aid in postwar reconstruction, and that providing for American membership in the food and agriculture organization of the United Nations.

Cheaper Shoes To Go Unrationed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 (AP)—OPA announced today a wide variety of shoes retailing for $3.50 a pair or less will be released temporarily from rationing.

Effective from August 27 through October 13, the release will apply only to adults' shoes in that price group. It was stated that stocks of children's shoes are not large enough to be included.

A War Production Board official predicted meanwhile that shoe rationing probably will be ended early in 1946.

More of Rare Drug Flown Here Needed to Save Boy

More units of streptomycin, the rare drug flown from Chicago laboratories by airmail to treat Harvey Zais, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Zais of Fall River, were being sought today in the belief the amount already procured might not be enough.

The boy is a patient at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital for tubercular meningitis, usually fatal.

The limited amount of the drug, landed at East Boston airport earlier today and rushed from the Back Bay postal station to the hospital by State Police Officer Joseph McEnaney, may or may not save the boy's life, according to physicians. Research with it is still in the exploratory stage. What there is available is earmarked for the armed forces.

Permission for release of a small quantity was obtained after the boy's perents enlisted the help of Gov. Tobin who got in touch with Army officials in Washington. The condition of the boy was described at the hospital as "poor."

According to Thomas P. McCusker, secretary to Gov. Tobin, about three million units of the drug are required and it was hoped a further supply might be obtained from a laboratory in Rahway, N. J., if the present amount is insufficient.

Who's making all those Long Distance Calls?

RETURNING SERVICE MEN—
The first thing they do, after reaching the debarkation center, is to call home.

MILITARY NEEDS—
Much long distance calling is still necessary to carry on military affairs and to continue war production.

VACATIONERS—
Vacation traffic, always heavy in New England this time of year, is now in full swing.
Well, telephones are for convenience and pleasure. But if you meet delays in making out-of-town calls, these are the reasons for them.

EVERYBODY—
People are just naturally using Long Distance more than ever before. Yet the big job that this makes for us must be done with pre-war equipment, since new facilities are still unavailable.

By making only essential Long Distance calls, and by keeping those brief, you will be helping everyone, especially service men, to get their calls through quicker.

Canning Advice For JVA Folk

Junior Victory Army members who plan to preserve fruit this fall may make valuable use of the suggestion of Katherine Lawler, food technologist of Mass. State College, Amherst.

She says to stretch your canning sugar with corn syrup or honey to help make the best use of available supplies.

The syrup may replace up to one-half of the sugar while strained honey may be used with twice as much hot water and no sugar, she explains.

The minimum allowance of five pounds of sugar per person will sweeten about 20 quarts of fruit. If a substitute were used which replaced one-half of the sugar, five pounds could preserve 40 quarts of fruit or 160 quarts for a family of four.

To make every pound go twice as far, use one cup of sugar and one cup of white corn syrup to five cups of water. This amount is sufficient for four quart jars of fruit.

To join the JVA, send your name, age and full address to Junior Victory Army, P. O. Box 233, Boston, Mass. If, in addition to enlistment, you want the JVA insignia pin and membership card, enclose a 10-cent coin well wrapped in your letter.

IN 1870

when Haffenreffer & Co., Inc., was founded, Tremont Street was the hub of Boston's social activity. On it were also located the residences of a number of the city's leading citizens and many of New England's best known centers of culture and amusement.

IN 1945

while several of the early historical landmarks remain as reminders of old Boston, lower Tremont Street has undergone a transition to become one of the city's important commercial thoroughfares. It is estimated that today more vehicles pass a given point on Tremont Street in one hour than passed the same point in a month during the Seventies. Haffenreffer & Co., Inc., brewers of PICKWICK ALE, have shown over the years a comparable growth to occupy an eminent position as one of America's great breweries.

Haymes-Forrest Bill for Boston

Dick Haymes and Helen Forrest, singing sensations of one of radio's favorite shows, are headed for a personal appearance on the RKO Boston stage, where on Thursday they will head the season's outstanding show.

Haymes is the smooth-voiced baritone who took the nation by storm at the time "swooners" first gained popularity. His star performances are not confined to radio. He established himself as a romantic screen star in the Technicolorful "Billy Rose's Diamond Horseshoe," in which he plays opposite Betty Grable.

He will soon be seen in the Twentieth Century musicals, "Kitten on the Keys," with Jeanne Drain and Vivian Blaine.

Lovely Helen Forest, called "the singing voice of over a million records," has broken all sorts of sales records with her vocal version of "I Heard You Cried Last Night," "You Made Me Love You" and "I Don't Want to Walk Without You."

The first-run screen feature, "The Woman in Green," starring Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce, will be the companion film attraction to the Forest-Haymes starring stage show next week.

Shangri-La Diary

By CPL. MARGARET HASTINGS, WAC

Written Exclusively for International News Special Service (World Copyright and All Rights Reserved)

OWEGO, N. Y., Aug. 4 (INS)—The so-called "Iron Men" of the past can step up and take lessons from Sgt. Kenneth Decker. On Sunday, May 20, exactly one week after the crash, we decided he was pure stoic with large infusions of American Indian blood.

After Doc and Rammy had fed us breakfast, our first hot meal since the accident, Doc went to work on Decker. For six hours he peeled the encrusted gangrene from the sergeant's infected burns. It was a very tedious and painful process.

All Doc's gentleness could not lessen Decker's ordeal. The sergeant lay rigid on his pallet. Decker was a very sick man, but never by a flinch or a whimper did he reveal the torment he was enduring.

Not only had he suffered a serious head injury and gangrenous burns, but it was now revealed that his right arm was broken at the elbow.

Or at least we now knew the arm was painfully injured. But without X-rays, Doc was afraid to try to treat it. There was always the possibility he might do it more harm than good. So it was not until we were rescued that Decker's broken arm received proper treatment.

There wasn't any anesthetic nor even a stiff drink of whisky available to ease his pain.

"Maybe it would be kinder to hit him in the head and put him out of his misery for a few hours," McCollom muttered. He was as wet with perspiration as Decker or Doc. As for Doc, he might have been operating in the amphitheater of a big hospital. He had a large and enthusiastic audience. Pete and his mob of natives gathered round to watch every move.

Perhaps you are wondering why we didn't borrow some native moonshine or red-eye from Pete. The answer is simple. As long as we were in the valley, we never saw any native liquor or any evidence that these kind, primitive people even knew how to make a fermented drink.

The Army plane came over early that Sunday morning. Already the natives were learning to take this calmly. At first it had terrified them. When the plane came over they would disappear into the jungle with the speed of light.

Finally, they accepted the plane as calmly as we did. But the cargo parachutes still bothered them. When they saw them settling into the little valley, they ran for their lives. Eventually, they accepted even the daily cargo parachutes with more nonchalance than we might have wished.

One day before we left the small valley, a native came running into our camp. He was terribly excited and upset.

He motioned for the men to follow him with such urgency that we knew some crisis had arisen.

HOW THE natives became fascinated by parachutes in "Shangri-La" is described herewith by WAC Cpl. Margaret Hastings in her continued great adventure story.

Our men hurried after him to the edge of the jungle. The native, in great distress, pointed up to the top of a 50-foot tree. There was another native, with an open parachute, preparing to make a free jump!

It was ludicrous, granted. But serious, too. If he had jumped and broken most of his bones, the natives might have blamed us and gone on the warpath.

So it was up to our men to persuade the daring young man to come down and NOT via parachute. It took a good bit of argument in pantomime. But they succeeded in getting him to climb down the tree.

The plane had big news for us that morning. On board were eight enlisted paratroopers, all Filipinos, and one officer, Capt. Cecil E. Walters, 24. We learned later that the captain had been born in the Philippines and that his father, an American business man, had been a major with the Filipino guerrillas throughout their fight for freedom.

"We are going down to the big valley now, and drop the paratroopers," the radio operator in the plane said. "They will be with you by nightfall."

This time all of us joined in a good, hearty Bronx cheer.

The Army estimated that the paratroopers were jumping about 10 miles from us. We knew they could never make it through the jungle by nightfall.

As it turned out, the men jumped on Sunday and reached us the following Friday!

From the air, distances can be very deceptive. The men jumped not 10 but 45 miles distant.

But it was good to know that more help was coming, this time to get us out of the valley.

Just how they would get us out, we didn't know. But we had confidence in the Army. In fact, we didn't learn that we were to be rescued by glider until Capt. Walters arrived. In the meantime, McCollom and I still held out for a helicopter and Decker still would have none of it.

Among the supplies dropped that Sunday, I found my rosary and a prayer book that Maj. Cornelius Waldo, the Catholic chaplain, had sent me. Father Waldo, who came from Indianapolis, had been in the plane when it sighted us the previous Wednesday.

Prayer books were dropped for the men, too, and a Bible for all of us.

When Doc finished with an exhausted Decker, he started work on me. It was the same peeling process and after five minutes, I wondered how I could endure it. I clutched my rosary and gritted my teeth. My pride was involved! I was determined to be as good a soldier as Decker. For four endless hours, Doc peeled my legs, my feet, and worked on my hand. I didn't cry or make a sound. But I was yelling bloody murder inside all the time.

Doc looked as wilted as Decker and myself when the day was over. By now the sergeant and I were both bedridden and the men brought our meals to us.

But as I settled into bed for the night, my heart felt lighter than in days. My legs hurt so badly I couldn't bear to have them touch anything. I had to lie on my back, with my legs pulled up to form a tent.

But with Doc landed among us, I felt the situation was well in hand and Decker would get well and I wouldn't lose my legs.

Furthermore, the radio operator on the plane that morning had given me a message from my beau. Wally, he reported, had been too frantic to talk coherently about the accident, even after he learned that I had survived by a miracle.

Up to that moment, I had worried constantly for fear Wally would be terribly upset by first, the accident, and then my present predicament. But now, woman-like, as soon as I knew he was worried half to death, I was as pleased as Punch!

Anyway, as I tried to get comfortable for the night—an impossible feat, by the way—I called out to the men:

"It's wonderful to go to bed and know you're on the road to recovery instead of ruin."

On the following day—Monday—I felt so much better in body and in spirit that I wanted a bath. Suddenly, I realized that I was filthy. Not dirty, but filthy.

Since the crash I hadn't even washed my face. For the first time in my life, it hadn't even seemed important. The only thing I had missed was my tooth brush, and when Doc arrived, he had one in his pocket for me.

But now I felt human again, and I wanted a bath. Rammy, who had made himself a pair of crutches to ease his sprained ankle, fixed everything for me.

On the side of the knoll, out of sight of the camp, he set up the soldier's universal bath tub: his helmet. Then he found soap, towels, a wash cloth and clean clothing. Then the men carried me down the hill and left me to scrub up.

Now in what I thought was blessed privacy, I took off my old pants and shirt and started to bathe, but all at once, I felt as if I were not alone.

And I wasn't! I looked around, and there, on a neighboring knoll, were the natives. I never could figure out whether they were goggle-eyed at the queer rite I was performing or at a skin so different from their own. None even moved from the knoll or made the slightest effort to molest me.

Our days began to take on a pleasant routine, broken only by the arrival of the plane with supplies.

Every day, Doc did a little more peeling on Decker and myself. But we were beginning to heal. The gangrene was checked and both of us were in high spirits again. Eventually, I inherited Rammy's crutches, but Decker was forced to spend most of his days in bed.

Doc and Rammy were wonderful. From the moment they arrived, they began to make us comfortable. Before we knew it, they had improvised a cook tent and a shelter for supplies out of parachutes, and had set up pup tents for all of us.

The beds were still hard, but by comparison with our previous lot we were living in the Ritz and the Waldorf-Astorio rolled into one.

Rammy even put the willing natives to work. He showed them how to chop tent poles with our jungle knives instead of their stone-age axes.

They were quick to learn and helpful around camp. When we realized how friendly and harmless they were, we gave them axes and jungle knives, thinking to ease their work.

They would use them for us, but never for themselves. They would take our gifts home over night. But on the following morning they would be returned.

They never touched a thing that belonged to us. We couldn't even get them to taste our food, although as far as we could tell, their own diet was a monotonous mess of sweet potatoes and sweet potato leaves. Quite obviously roast pig was a rare delicacy used only to celebrate some great occasion.

The only thing we could ever get them to accept was American cigarets. They loved them. But they were always terrified by matches or by lighters. So we used to light cigarets from our own and hand them over to Pete and his men.

By the time Capt. Walters and his paratroopers arrived, Pete and his followers had learned at last one English word, my nickname, Maggie. I have always heartily detested it. But I loved it the way the natives pronounced it. They softly slurred the name and it became "Mahgy."

Let It Be Two-Way Lend-Lease

WHEN THE PEOPLE of England turned down Prime Minister Churchill, who had reminded them that they were living off the bounty of the United States and not doing their part in the Pacific war, they posed an inescapable question for the people of America to consider and answer.

Congressman John M. Robsion of Kentucky, now asks it:

"In the future, before we make large commitments in the way of men, money and materials of war and relief, should we not have some commitments from those with whom we are allied?" he demands.

"Should they not be required to depend upon themselves and aid in this great undertaking to bring the war to an early end and a just and lasting peace and help to protect our country and other countries from future wars?"

To show the urgency of an understanding of this kind, Congressman Robsion further says:

"Congress has already voted more than SIXTY-FIVE BILLION DOLLARS for Lend-Lease, despite the fact that when this matter was first up for consideration in 1941 and this policy was adopted by the Administration, it was urged that Lend-Lease in no event would exceed seven billion dollars.

"The British Empire has already received approximately THIRTY BILLION DOLLARS in Lend-Lease.

"Russia, which has gone through this war without creating a national debt to amount to anything, has received between TWELVE AND FIFTEEN BILLION DOLLARS . . .

"Lend-Lease was authorized by Congress to provide aid to nations that would help us win this war.

"But about a score of nations have been receiving Lend-Lease and contributed little or nothing toward our war effort."

INSTEAD, Congressman Robsion declares, Russia is busily gobbling up the small countries of Europe whose freedom was achieved by the sacrifice of American blood and money in World War I.

England, meddling increasingly in Spain, Italy and other European countries, is aggressively expanding her sphere of influence.

Consequently, the United States continues to furnish more than 90 per cent of the men and equipment for the Pacific War, with Russia, Britain, France, Holland and other countries standing by, ready to claim the possessions they once held and to demand new ones.

"I therefore believe," Congressman Robsion says, "that the American people want us to hold every island in the Pacific which has been taken from the Japanese through the blood and sacrifice of American fighting men on land, sea and in the air . . .

"IF WE MUST FIGHT AND PROTECT THE PACIFIC LET US HAVE SUCH TERRITORY AND BASES AS ARE NECESSARY TO MAKE OUR PROTECTION SECURE."

THE OVERWHELMING majority of the American people supports Mr. Robsion's realistic views.

The American people also wish to acquire the equally essential island bases in the Atlantic, most of which have been expensively defended and developed with their own money.

In addition to the loans, grants and gifts already received from the United States, which has spent more money in this war than all the other Allied nations put together, England wants FIVE BILLION DOLLARS MORE in the next year, Russia wants SIX BILLION DOLLARS MORE and various other governments want supplementary amounts totalling nearly THIRTY-THREE BILLION DOLLARS.

Before we commit ourselves further to salvation of Europe and the world, would it not be wise for us to require the beneficiaries of our largess to commit themselves more substantially to the salvation of America?

MANY VISITORS to New York city these days make at least one trip to Brooklyn. Either they want to see the Dodgers on their home grounds or have a desire to learn if it is true what Betty Smith said about the trees in Brooklyn. In the postwar period there probably will be "Seeing Brooklyn" buses.

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: Perhaps some feminine genius of the postwar world will invent a non-showable slip. It would seem an easy matter to prevent a slip showing, but it seems to baffle about 98 per cent of women.

HUSBANDS: "England is still a man's country. The husbands continue to rule the roost," states a contemporary. Perhaps this is true. But that organization known as the British Married Women's Ass'n is doing much to get the English wives a better break! Things have progressed so far that some women even know how much salary their husbands get. However, Englishmen will always dominate the home to some extent. Englishwomen seem to prefer it that way. It is surprising how many of them take the "obey" in the marriage ceremony seriously.

Her parents named her Elizabeth, but she clipped off the "E" to give her name a Southern touch. She is referred to by the Hollywood scribes as "a sultry beauty." I don't know just what a "sultry beauty" is. Probably something like a "blonde bombshell" or a "Brooklyn bonfire," but only in a small way.

QUERIES FROM CLIENTS: Q—Have just received a $100 Chinese bill from a sergeant friend in China. What is it worth? A—If you had 26 more Chinese $100 bills you would have just enough to make an exchange for a one dollar United States bill. Twenty-seven hundred Chinese dollars is what they are giving for one U. S. dollar bill in the money black market in China now . . . Q—Why it is all great musical composers have preferred cats to dogs as pets? A—Who said they did? For every great musical composer you can name who had a cat for a pet I will name three who had dogs. I will start with Tchaikowsky, who had eight dogs and took them all walking daily . . . Q—Have you a reader in Goodnight, Okla.? A—Not yet. However, I have one in Peculiar, Mo.

GARTERS: Over 20 years ago Al Woods produced a play titled "Getting Gertie's Garter." Now there has been produced a film version of this play. How long has it been since most women stopped wearing garters? I asked our Horses & Women experts this question and they didn't know the answer. Evidently they are still paying too much attention to horses. As for garters, I remember a vaudeville actress named Charmion threw her garters to the audience at the conclusion of her act. Brides of today often wear blue garters to adhere to the "something borrowed, something blue" tradition. That's all I know about garters, except that when King Edward III of England said, "Honi soit qui mal y pense," he was talking about the Countess of Salisbury, who lost her garter at a ball.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By GEORGE DIXON

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—For as far back as I care to remember, various parties in the writing business have been babbling that the real story of Washington has yet to be written.

They agree that countless thousands have tried, but that the nubbin, or heart, always seems to elude. Many contend that it will never be told; that it's impossible to put on paper.

Sen. Magnuson

Naturally, I have no ideas on this myself because I have only 900 or so words at my disposal each time, and I am reasonably sure the whole story of Washington requires more than 900 words. I would not be surprised if it needed better than 900 million.

However, this is not a debating society, so we will get down to business. The other day I bumped into Sen. Warren G. Magnuson of Washington and darned if he didn't launch into the same subject.

"You writing guys," he said, without preamble, "are forever yapping that the real story of Washington has never been told; that it's impossible to put on paper.

"Well—I have just had an experience which I think contains the whole story. If you will just lend me your ears I will give."

I LENT him my ears, demanding only a slight deposit, and this is what he said:

"This morning I emerged from the Shoreham Hotel, where I live, and got into a taxi. In line with Washington's share-the-cab policy it already had occupants—a French sailor and a Chinese General.

"A few blocks along we picked up a Hindu in native costume, and then a South American.

"The Chinese gentleman got out at the Federal Reserve Bank.

"The Hindu got out at the Foreign Economic Administration.

"The South American got out at the Mellon Art Gallery."

"I WAS the last passenger," continued Senator Magnuson. "I told the driver to take me to the Capitol.

"He looked me over appraisingly and asked my nationality. I said I was of Swedish descent.

"'I'm Irish,' he said, as if there could be any question. 'Everybody is going somewhere important. Even you—a Swede!'

"'The Irish haven't a chance. All we do is lug you foreigners around!'"

THE GREAT STATE of Illinois has a Representative who insists upon being called "Runt." This gentleman, who is not particularly undersized, is Runt Bishop.

He is listed as "Runt" in the Congressional Directory, also the phone book, and is registered that way with the gas and electric companies. His explanation seems quite logical.

"I came here as 'Runt,'" he says, "and I'm going back home as 'Runt.'"

Anyway, Mr. Bishop, who is a tailor by trade, is extremely serious about his job.

"Whenever I am about to go back home," he said, "I send word that I will be in the office of the County Judge at the County Seat at such and such a time on such and such a day. The notice says that I will be available to hear all beefs, protests, requests, and suggestions any of my constituents may wish to make in person.

"The thing has worked out swell. Often the Judge's office is so crowded we have to move to the big courtroom. But I see and hear everyone who wants to talk to me."

Mr. Runt said he was holding one of these soirees last time home when a forcible female pushed through the crowd. But instead of asking anything she merely stared.

Finally her scrutiny became somewhat embarrassing and Runt asked her how he could be of service.

"Oh," she said, "I don't want anything. I just heard that you design and make your own clothes and I wanted to get a look at them!"

ONE FARM WOMAN said she had a trifling favor to ask—just a gravel road to her farm.

"By golly," said Runt, "I got that for her too! And don't think she wasn't properly appreciative. She sent me a hand-made doily for a teapot—in case I get a teapot!"

NEW YORK, Aug. 4—Life is always interesting in a columnist's letter box. Here are a few missives from Bayonne, Berlin, and all over:

Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

Dear Miss Kilgallen:

Read your column and glad you mentioned about the picture of George M. Cohan's life. It was a mean trick to have left out Ethel Levey and her daughter, Georgette Cohan, who were a big part of that life. Who can ever forget lovely Ethel Levey singing "I was Born Down In Virginia." And she can still do it. Thank you for your nice writing. MRS. RIVA TRISTER.

Dear Miss Kilgallen:

I am writing this letter in the interest of a very wonderful star who presented a USO show yesterday afternoon on our behalf. The lady to whom I have reference is Jane Froman.

All the boys were given inspiration by her performance. It has proven to us that there are still human beings in the world who satisfy themselves by giving benefit performances, and are not out there for the sole purpose of their own welfare and the gain of filthy lucre.

She arrived on the stage with

a smile on her face and a dazzling pair of sparkling eyes. She sang the songs we wanted to hear, and in the way we wanted to hear them, until she was almost exhausted.

Would you please, through your power of the press, give Miss Froman some recognition for her wonderful work and tell her how great our appreciation is for the fine work she is doing.

For our money she is terrific and can sing for us any time.

Dear Dorothy:

I got a big kick out of your column on Eisenhower's parade up Fifth ave. The general has always looked just that spic and span in the ETO, too.

Funny about the non-fraternization policy over here. It didn't seem to bother the Germans at all, but it made the Yanks feel like prisoners of war. Some of the German glamor girls kept the Yank wolves away by wearing little signs on their hats, "Remember, no fraternizing!"

Dear Miss Kilgallen:

I would appreciate very much if in one of your columns you would let us Navy Wives know why, when our husbands are stationed on the West Coast — namely, San Bruno, Cal.—they are not receiving mail? In the three weeks that my husband has been stationed at San Bruno he has received only one letter from me. I have written every day and at times twice daily, and have sent the letters air mail. In his last letter he stated:

"Am wondering why I haven't received any mail from you. After all, it is your job at the home front to uphold the morale of us boys at the front lines."

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 4—These actors all get the producing bug sooner or later—point in case being Gary Cooper, Fred MacMurray and now Robert Cummings. Cummings has bought the rights to the biographical novel of Chaplain John Grant, a small town American minister who enlisted in the Army after Pearl Harbor and lost both legs during the bloody battle of Tarawa.

Robert Cummings

I am sorry, but I can't believe Cummings paid $50,000 for the story, as told to me. People seldom pay that amount for novels unless they are best sellers. But, anyway, he did buy the story and will star and produce it, after he finishes his commitment with Hal Wallis. Chaplain Grant learned to walk all over again on artificial legs, and his story is an inspiration to others of our boys who have suffered similar injuries.

MY FRIEND, Walt Disney, has a whooper-dooper of an idea for a postwar picture. He's engaged Marc Connelly to do a screen play on Hans Christian Andersen's fairy story, "The Emperor and the Nightingale." Walt says the treatment of this movie, is a deep-eyed secret, but in it he expects to make the wedding of flesh and fantasy complete—or rather should I say cartoon and human. Walt has built a new sound stage and applied for materials to build others as soon as possible This one, of course, will follow "Make Mine Music," which he is now doing

I AM GLAD Kent Smith is coming back in a good picture. He really was one of the promising young actors at the time the war took him from RKO. He'll do "Some Must Watch" for Dore Schary That's the movie for which Dorothy McGuire and Ethel Barrymore have been announced. Understand Mrs. Charles Laughton (Elsa Lanchester to her public) is also in the lineup and the picture, in case you are interested, gets going Aug. 13. That means Dorothy McGuire is due any day now, if she isn't already here.

THE RANCH Dorothy Lamour and her husband, Maj Howard, have bought near Riverside makes the other lady and gentlemen farmers around here look like sissies. Dottie has traded in her sarong for a sunbonnet with a vengeance. Her ranch is 741 acres, equipped with a herd of cattle, 10 or 12 horses, chickens and three houses—the main farm house which "rambles" according to specifications and two adobe guest houses which are 115 years old. The Howards won't move in until after the baby is born. Maybe Dottie got the ranching yen from living in San Bernardino the past year so she would be near her husband.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD COLLECTED AT RANDOM: Com. Jack Dempsey, who will be stationed at San Pedro, is in town and will make his headquarters in California. He's recovering from a bad attack of ulcers; Ann Sheridan writes there will be no news about her movie plans until she gets the picture she likes. Well, the lady should know; the many friends of Minna Wallis will be sorry to hear she goes into the hospital for an operation on Tuesday; Diana Lynn comforting Pat Nearny at the Troc. He was pretty much upset over Ginny Simms' marriage, although she had told me she wouldn't marry him all along

His guests include his pals Gene Fowler and Errol Flynn, Lionel Barrymore, Ethel Barrymore, Anita Loos, Cole Porter, Clark Gable and others; Van Johnson came out of the barber shop yesterday and found 50 kids waiting for him after they spied his car in front. They followed him down the street Pied Piper fashion, and wouldn't leave until he had a drink of orange juice with them; Jeanette MacDonald's friends and fans are turning out en masse for her Bowl concert Aug. 9; Betty Furness joined her bridegroom, Bud Ernst, here today, Betty Hutton will broadcast from Berlin on the 15th; Leo McCarey has taken to the mountains with a suitcase of ideas

New Silhouette in Suits

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE, Beauty and Fashion Editor

SUITS ARE SUITS . . . classic or richly decorative . . . but the turning point of this season's suit silhouette is a curve . . . giving a rounded, broad-shoulder look to the costume . . . a fluid, all-of-a-piece look to the jacket.

The classic suit this season is hip length of jacket . . . with a slightly fuller skirt . . . slightly wider lapels . . . or a loose yoke arrangement in place of lapels. The Eastern influence suits . . . so strongly advocated in Anthony Blotta's collection . . . may be richly decorative, with jewelled sleeves . . . shoulder motifs or exquisitely embroidered yokes surrounded by a simulated "necklace of rank" with a wide chain and medallion.

In some suits the roundness . . . this season's newest style note . . . is even more eye-catching in the seamless shoulders which follow the bold curves of the new shoulder pads. The silhouette has gotten away from the triangular pattern and becomes a freer moving garment of soft, rounded lines.

Suit jackets don't look so chopped off as they did last year but have a little more length for the graceful extension of the silhouette. Still other suit changes noted for the new season are sleeves that get away from the narrow lines . . . copied from men's tailored apparel . . . and adopt a modified balloon fullness at the wrist . . . a gesture of fullness above the nipped-in-waistline . . . all subservient to the more curved, looser look in suit jackets.

SEQUIN EMBROIDERY

Last year's suit will definitely be dated . . . since the new version brings higher necklines in some instances . . . one-button closing in others . . . and, of course, the rounded shoulder for the more outstanding variation.

The suit jacket silhouette is an adaptation of the new coat silhouette which similarly has taken its curve cue and highlighted fur yokes for accents. Even in the suits that have a military inspiration . . . though the fabric is soft wool . . . there are deep armholes splashed with sequin embroidery. The angular look is out . . . the curved, rounded look is in. That's the difference of a year in clothes.

And, suits are fresh from the designer's drawing in acceptance of this new silhouette. Fur-trimmed suits are a new mode . . . and you'll find many jackets lined or trimmed with stunning pelt for smart contrast and rounded softness.

SPECTACULAR treatment of the melon or rounded silhouette is reflected in this Ben Reig new season model (top, at right). The short, full-sleeved coat . . . lined in black seal . . . is in the same shade of royal blue wool as the trim-fitting jacket and uniquely gored skirt completing the costume . . . but is tucked all over . . . up and down for the front and around on the sleeves . . . to contrast.

AS IF shoulders aren't already wide enough . . . Nettie Rosenstein adds her signature touch by using huge aileron tucks to widen still further the shoulder lines of this slim two-tone fall suit. The jacket is rust soft wool with interesting angular lines . . . and the skirt is brown wool. The high stock-neckline blouse is gold jersey . . . accessorized with a heraldic emblem.

TRICK LAPEL suits have always been Fox-Brownie's designer signature and she outdoes herself and adds a trick closing in this one of paint-box green wool. The buttons begin in a single-breasted line . . . suddenly become double-breasted at the waistline.

AN EVERY DAY classic is this scotch tweed in pink and brown check, no less (at left) . . . acclaimed by the New York Dress Institute for its simplicity and high-style durability. A single-button style for the new fall angle, it is the kind of suit a woman loves to wear day in and out . . . varying the blouses and smart accessories.

THIS SEASON'S version and successor to Pauline Trigere's famed shoebutton suit . . . is this intriguing little number in beige tweed mixture with widened shoulders . . . deep armholes and a double row of smart silver buttons . . . designed to be buttoned only from the waistline down. The skirt is uncompromisingly slim and trouser-topped. Dark green wool jersey . . . for contrast . . . fashions the draped blouse.

Fresh Fruits, Vegetables Boost Menus

By MARTHA LEE

ARE YOU FINDING it difficult to plan meals these days? Then consider the fresh fruits and vegetables now available in the market.

For crisp texture and the most vitamin C, serve vegetables and fruits raw frequently. To keep colors bright—and to conserve vitamins—cook vegetables just till tender, and serve at once. Vegetables cooked to a dingy brown mush are ugly and retain little food value.

FOR CONTRAST

In planning meals, try to work out interesting contrasts—crisp cabbage slaw with baked beans, crunchy toast with soup, chopped celery with peanut butter as a sandwich filling. Avoid serving all watery vegetables at a meal or more than one starchy vegetable. In a vegetable plate dinner it is often a good idea to fry or scallop one vegetable, or make it into fritters or croquettes, to provide rich flavor, crisp texture and stick-to-the-ribs satisfaction.

MENU

Cheese Souffle
Broccoli or Snap Beans
Parsley Potatoes
Raw Carrot Sticks
Whole Wheat Muffins
Marmalade
Fruit Cup
Milk

This menu offers appetizing contrasts: Crisp carrot sticks to fluffy souffle, tart fruit cup to bland potatoes. Most important, it adds up nutritionally to a well balanced meal.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

¼ cup butter or margarine
¼ cup flour 1 cup milk
1 cup grated American cheese
1 tsp. salt ¼ tsp. paprika
¼ tsp. mustard
3 eggs, separated

Melt butter and stir in flour; gradually add milk and cook about 5 minutes, stirring constantly until mixture thickens; add cheese and seasonings, stirring until it is melted, and remove from heat. Gradually stir in well-beaten egg yolks and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites; turn into greased casserole or baking dish and put in pan of hot water; bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 50 to 60 minutes, or until delicately browned and firm to touch. Serve at once. Garnish with parsley, if desired. 6 servings.

WHOLE WHEAT MUFFINS

1 cup sifted white flour
1 cup whole wheat or graham flour, unsifted
3 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt 1 cup milk
3 tbsps brown sugar
1 egg, well beaten
3 tbsps. shortening, melted

Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add unsifted whole wheat or graham flour. Combine egg, milk and shortening and add to flour mixture, stirring only until mixed. Use tablespoon to dip batter into greased muffin pans and fill them 2/3 full. Bake in hot oven (425 deg. F.) for 20 to 30 minutes, according to size of muffin. 14 medium sized.

FRUIT CUP

3 ripe pears 1 pint lemon ice
1 small melon
3 peaches Sauterne

Tale of the Big Kid and The Nerve Doctor's Tag

By AUSTEN LAKE

THIS IS A TRUE STORY. A big, sandy-haired kid stood diffidently in my doorway. So I said, "Come on in," and he sat down. There was the mark of the Army on him as he looked at me anxiously. "I've been discharged six months," he said. "They hung the tag of 'dementia praecox' on me, though I don't just know what that means, except it sounds pretty bad."

Austen Lake

The big kid dry-washed his fingers. "I get little spells of forgetfulness now and then and maybe a big headache, but otherwise I feel okay." The kid had a puzzled frown as he talked. "The Army turned me out with $140 a month and a 'total' and said, 'Go where there's some salt air. So I came to Boston. But I can't get a job because every time I ask, the guys say, 'Let me see your Army papers! and soon as they sees this 'dementia' business they say, 'Oh, I forgot, we just hired a fellow for that place.' So I look everywhere and don't get no job. That guy you helped to clear of his Blue Discharge said to see you."

The big kid hesitated and tilted his head, listening. "Say," he said, "do you hear a whistling noise?" I listened, too. For a little while there seemed no sound except the low growl of the basement presses and the usual street noises. Then I heard it—a thin ribbon of noise like a far-away peanut roaster. So I said, "Oh, that peanut roaster sound, like this?" and gave a duplicate whistle.

They Just Gave Him a "PDD" and $140

THE BIG KID LOOKED RELIEVED and said, "Oh, you hear that too?" And I said, "Sure. The only reason I didn't hear it at first was I get used to it as part of the day's noise. It's a saw in the stereotype room." So I said to the Big Kid, "See what you're doing? You're suspicious of yourself because you have this dementia praecox tag and don't know what it means. So you think every little sound is inside your skull." And the Big Kid said, "Yeh, I guess that's so! Because sometimes I get to listenin' when there isn't any sounds and pretty soon I hear things that maybe ain't there."

So I said, "Forget about those fancy words the nerve doctors hang on guys for things they don't always understand themselves. Everybody's a little psycho, including the nerve doctors. I'm a little psycho myself and if you doubt it follow me around and see the cuckoo things I do and say."

The Big Kid grinned a little wider and said, "Yeah, I guess I ain't the only one. But what about them jobs? They don't want no part of me and give me a queer look like I got horns or something. Then I go away feeling hollow inside and wishing I could go back to the Army. But they don't want no part of me, neither."

So I said, "Why do you tell those birds you're tagged with dementia praecox, which they don't understand and think is something pretty bad?" And the Big Kid said, "Well they ask. So I tell 'em." Then I said, "Why don't you just say you've been discharged for disability, and nothing more?" And the Big Kid said, "Then they ask me what kind, and I gotta tell 'em." So I said, "To hell with telling them. It's none of their damn business. Tell them you have a sacroiliac." And the Big Kid said, "What's that?" So I said, "It's a weakness at the end of your spine, where the bones don't fit. Tell them that, and burn all those papers except your discharge which says "Honorably Discharged for PD."

So the Big Kid grinned a little wider and said, "I never thought of that. I guess that's right. But what if I have one of those dizzy spells where I go blank and don't remember nothing except who I am and where I live?" So I said, "Just say it's your old malaria coming back and you got to sit down a while or maybe, if it's bad, go home." The Big Kid thought a while and said, "Yeah, that would do it."

The Stuff They Call "Psychoneurosis"

THEN I SAID, "DIDN'T THE ARMY medics say to report to a station every once in a while for examination and treatment?" And the Big Kid said: "No, they just gave me a discharge for 'total' and $140 a month and said: 'Let the veterans' administration know your address.' That's all." So I said: "Don't you want treatment?" And the Kid said: "Sure, I want to know when I'm all right. I went to the Boston VA and they asked where my medical record was, and I said, 'Oklahoma City'—that's my home. So I gotta wait until they get it."

The Big Kid looked perfectly normal, so I said: "Those dizzy spells. What happens?" And he said: "Oh, I just fade out mostly and the back of my head begins to hurt and down my spine. But I don't black out all the way. The last time a cop picked me up and took me to the station house. Guess he thought I was a drunk. Another time a buddy took me home and stayed up with me all night. They don't last long. I got that way during a bombing raid in Corsica and for a while they had me locked up in a hospital in Italy and later in the South."

So I said: "Well, I've seen a lot of this 'battle-fatigue' and stuff they call 'psychoneurosis' and 'shell shock' and other fancy names. But the guys always got better and the trouble gradually cleared up till they didn't have it any more. But the worst of it was, they got imagining things about themselves, because of those tags and thought they ought to be queer, when lots of nerve doctors are queerer than they are. So there isn't really anything wrong with you that a little time won't heal, or you wouldn't be walking around town."

The Big Kid said: "Yes! They said in Corsica after the bomb raid I was hitting people with my fists for no reason at all. But I don't remember anything like that." So I said: "Burn those damn medical notes and only keep your discharge. Begin thinking about yourself as 100 per cent solid, which you are! Then come back in a couple of days and we'll get you a job where you can forget about yourself." And the Big Kid said: "Yes, sir" and went out again.

Who's got a job for the Big Kid?

Braves Win Delayed Game From Dodgers

BRAVES FIELD, Aug. 4—Before starting a regularly scheduled game, the Braves completed the job of beating the Brooklyn Dodgers, 4-1, in a game suspended by Massachusetts Sunday Law on June 17.

That was the score of the contest when play was stopped with Goody Rosen on second base and one out in the eighth inning.

Bob Logan, starting Tribal pitcher on June 17, today set five batters down in order to complete the tilt and receive credit for the victory.

FIRST INNING

DODGERS—Stanky struck out. Masi dropped the third strike and threw him out at first. Rosen flied to Holms. Culler threw out Galan. NO RUNS.

Culler walked. Culler was caught off first but said something to Magerkurth about a balk and Magerkurth made some kind of a confusing motion and Culler trotted to second base. Stanky thinking that a balk had been called did not tag Culler at second.

Lombardi started the throw to first and stopped but immediately threw the ball to first. But Magerkurth ruled a balk when he stopped the throw. Durocher and Stanky argued with Magerkurth. Stanky threw his glove and hat onto the ground.

Play was resumed. Stanky stayed in the game. Masi flied to Walker, Culler moving to third after the catch. Holmes walked. Medwick flied to Walker, Culler scoring after the catch. Nieman singled to left, Holmes stopping at second, Gillenwater forced Nieman, Basinski to Stanky. ONE RUN.

BRAVES — Bordagaray threw out Culler. Masi flied to Rosen. Holmes flied to Walker. NO RUNS.

Nats Win Opener When Johnson Fails

By HERB FINNEGAN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—Making his first start of the season, Walter Holborow gave the Red Sox only two hits in the first game of today's twin bill, blanked them 4-0 and thus registered the seventh straight victory for the flying Senators. It was the fourth defeat in a row for the Boston clan.

Also making his first of the season was Victor Johnson of the Sox. The slim southpaw couldn't get the ball over the plate with the result that the Senators got their first three runs on no hits. As in O'Neill's game last night, walks ruined the Sox.

FIRST GAME

FIRST INNING

RED SOX—LaForest struck out. Metkovich popped to Torres in short left. Lake walked. R. Johnson forced Lake at second, Clift to Myatt. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Case walked, so did Myatt. Zardon sacrificed, LaForest to Newsome. Kuhel walked. Clift also walked forcing Case across the plate and leaving the bases loaded. McFarland flied to Metkovich, Myatt scoring after the catch, Zardon holding second. Torres lined to R. Johnson. TWO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

RED SOX—Camilli grounded out to Kuhel, unassisted. Fox flied to Case. Newsome went out the same way. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Evans walked. That was all for Vic Johnson and Red Barrett came into pitch for Boston, Holborow sacrificed and was out when Holm tagged him out on the first base line, and when Holm attempted a double play he threw the ball into center field trying to get Evans. Evans went to third on the error. Case flied to Metkovich, Evans scoring after the catch. Myatt struck out. ONE RUN.

THIRD INNING

RED SOX—Binks went to centerfield for Washington. Holm flied to Bink. Barrett struck out. La Forest popped to Torres. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Binks fanned. Kuhel fouled to Camilli. Lake made a nice stop and threw out Clift. NO RUNS.

FOURTH INNING

RED SOX—Metkovich doubled, and was out trying to stretch it, McFarland to Myatt to Clift. Myatt threw out Lake. Clift threw out Johnson. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—La Forest threw out McFarland. Torres singled. Evans doubled, sending Torres to third. Holborow ground to La Forest and Torres was caught off third and run down. La Forest to Holm to Lake. Evans going to third. Newsome took Case's short pop. NO RUNS.

FIFTH INNING

RED SOX—Camilli walked. Fox fouled to Kuhel. Newsome flied to Binks. Holm took a third strike. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Myatt flied to Johnson. Binks fanned. Kuhel took a third strike. NO RUNS.

SIXTH INNING

RED SOX—Barrett was safe at first on Torres' fumble. La Forest singled, Barrett pulling up at second. Metkovich grounded out, Kuhel to Holborow, who covered first. Lake grounded to Torres, and Barrett was out at the plate, Torres to Evans. Johnson struck out. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—Clift popped to Newsome. McFarland fanned. La Forest threw out Torres. NO RUNS.

SEVENTH INNING

RED SOX—Camilli grounded out to Kuhel. Fox lined to Case. Newsome lined to Binks. NO RUNS.

SENATORS—La Forest threw out Evans. Lake threw out Holborow. Case tripled. Myatt beat out a bunt to Barrett, Case scoring. Binks forced Myatt at second, Lake unassisted. ONE RUN.

Borowy to Be Placed in 1-A in N. J. Draft Probe

By JACK CONWAY

HANK BOROWY is certain to be inducted into the Army unless it is found he is physically unfit as a result of the ruling by the New Jersey Selective Service Headquarters that his Class 2-B draft classification is improper.

Borowy was placed in 2-B when he was employed by a defense plant at Bloomfield, N. J. Borowy was not entitled to deferred classification once he left his defense job in March to report for spring practice with the Yanks. For some unexplained reason Borowy was not placed in 1-A when he returned to the Yanks.

Hank Borowy

If this had been done in March, Borowy would probably have been drafted by now. The Cubs never would have taken him in the famous $100,000 deal.

The spotlight that Borowy received when he was sent to the Cubs resulted in the investigation of his draft status. It was found that Borowy should have been classified 1-A since last March.

At the age of 27 Borowy will probably soon be called by the Army.

The Cubs are likely to be deprived of Borowy's services at the most critical point of the pennant race. The pitcher they had relied upon to win the National League pennant for them may be in the Army when they need his services the most.

The Cubs have a comfortable margin on National League rivals, and they are hopeful that Borowy will be able to win at least six more games for them before being called for service.

When Borowy's draft board meets, it is expected to place him in 1-A without further delay. The next decision will be up to the doctors, and it is difficult to see how a top athlete like Borowy could be rejected.

DiMaggio in Hospital

JOE DIMAGGIO of the Yanks is in an air corps hospital at St. Petersburg, Fla., for a checkup for trouble he has been having with his stomach. It is likely DiMaggo will receive his discharge.

DiMaggio would probably have been out of the Army several months ago if it had not been for the fact he is a national baseball figure. The War Department cut many restrictions around the discharges of professional athletes.

With thousands of soldiers getting medical discharges, it is likely that DiMaggio will also be let out of the Army if his stomach condition is found to be of a chronic nature.

Wreckage at Lynn Of Ship Sunk in War

Coast Guard officials who inspected wreckage and flotsam which washed ashore at Lynn and Swampscott reported today this probably came from a ship sunk off the coast, early in the war.

Many beach residents salvaged driftwood. In addition to lumber, empty gasoline cans, containers and bottles, unopened K-ration tins were among the materials washed up.
